It was an active day at Queen's Park last Tuesday as Lieutenant Governor Lincoln Alexander gave the Speech from the Throne. Minden Reeve Ray Moore was at Queen's Park as a guest of Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins to hear the speech and attend a reception afterwards. Other guests from Victoria and Haliburton Counties included Lutterworth Reeve Carol Puffer, Somerville Reeve Bryce Young and Victoria County Warden Dennis Sweeting. Seen here, Moore is greeted by the Lieutenant Governor during the reception. Seen in the background is Warden Sweeting.

Amalgamation is inevitable

Eakins calls for input in county government revision

Haliburton County will see some dramatic changes in the next five years if, as expected, the Minister of Municipal Affairs adopts most of the 41 recommendations from the most recent report on County Government in Ontario.

Because of the potential change that could result if these recommendations are adopted, Municipal Affairs Minister John Eakins is inviting comment from county councillors, municipal councillors and the public.

"I want to hear your views on this report by July 14," Eakins told a gathering of county wardens on April 20. "If you can think of better solutions than those proposed by the committee, please tell me about them."

Eakins expects that some of the recommendations in the report will spark controversy. He may be in for a surprise, though, since the recommendations themselves were derived from comments made by county and municipal councillors.

The report was called for after an earlier report by an advisory committee came out with recommendations to overhaul the 140-year-old system of government. The Consultation Committee was formed to tour the province meeting with members of the 26 county councils and other interested parties and report back to the minister.

Still, though, there is bound to be some controversy arising from the recommendations that will ultimately lead to amalgamation of the smaller townships in the Highlands to form larger, more efficient municipalities.

One recommendation in this report suggests that the minimum population base for a municipality to support efficient cost-effective services would be 4,000. Since Haliburton County has a population of about 12,000, that recommendation, if endorsed, would reduce the number of municipalities in Haliburton from 10 to three.

Eakins, himself, has admitted that this recommendation may not be workable in all cases. To remedy this, a second recommendation suggests that some municipalities be allowed to have a population base of less than 4,000 if the population density, geographic isolation, nature of the economy or natural location of a service area warrant a smaller size.

Regardless of this secondary recommendation, Haliburton County is bound to see a significant reduction in the number of municipalities. How those amalgamations will be made is ultimately up to the local politicians.

Recommendation number 27 in this report suggests that a study be undertaken in each county in order to consider reorganization of the county structure in line with the directions outlined in the Government Policy Statement. These further studies to be undertaken by the counties will recognize the unique nature of each county and produce recommendations tailored to fit the circumstances of each area.

The Consultation Committee has recommended that School taxes jump 15.7%

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Haliburton County Board of Education has passed its 1989 budget leading to a 15.7 per cent increase in the amount raised through local property taxes.

The budget itself only grew by 9.8 per cent but, because provincial grants did not increase in proportion to the growth of the board, the money will have to be raised locally. The province increased its contribution to the board's budget by only $31,360, less than a one per cent increase over last year's grant.

The total board expenditures expected for 1989 are $11,866,977. Of that 34 per cent is contributed by the province and 65 per cent is raised by the municipalities through property taxes. Last year the province contributed 37 per cent of the board's budget.

The board's Business Administrator, Jim Bradley, said his original proposed budget called for an expenditure increase of 12 per cent over 1988 but the board wanted to keep the increase below 10 per cent. In order to trim the budget, Bradley calculated how much money would have to come off each school's list of expenditures and let the principals decide where the cuts in their schools should be made.

In structure, very little has changed from last year's budget. Salaries and benefits still account for about 68 per cent of the expenditures, transportation accounts for 11 per cent, and 12.8 per cent is spent on supplies. The remaining seven per cent is spent on tuition fees, repairs and alterations, capital costs, and debt charges.

The thought of amalgamation of the small townships in Haliburton County is unpalatable for many who live in those municipalities, but the pill will be sugar-coated if the end result is a significant strengthening of County Council and its newly-formed municipal counterparts.

Those elected last November to sit on county council are now faced with some of the most delicate, controversial and important choices that this county has seen in several decades. The Ministry of Municipal Affairs has begun the long-overdue process of revamping the system of county government in the province, and in doing so it has left Haliburton County Councillors with the onerous task of creating a whole new face for the Highlands.

The message in the report of the Consultation Committee on County Government in Ontario is clear: small, inefficient municipalities will be squeezed out. However, while this element of the report is bound to gain a great deal of attention in this county, it is only one very small part of a bold initiative to rekindle a dated form of government.

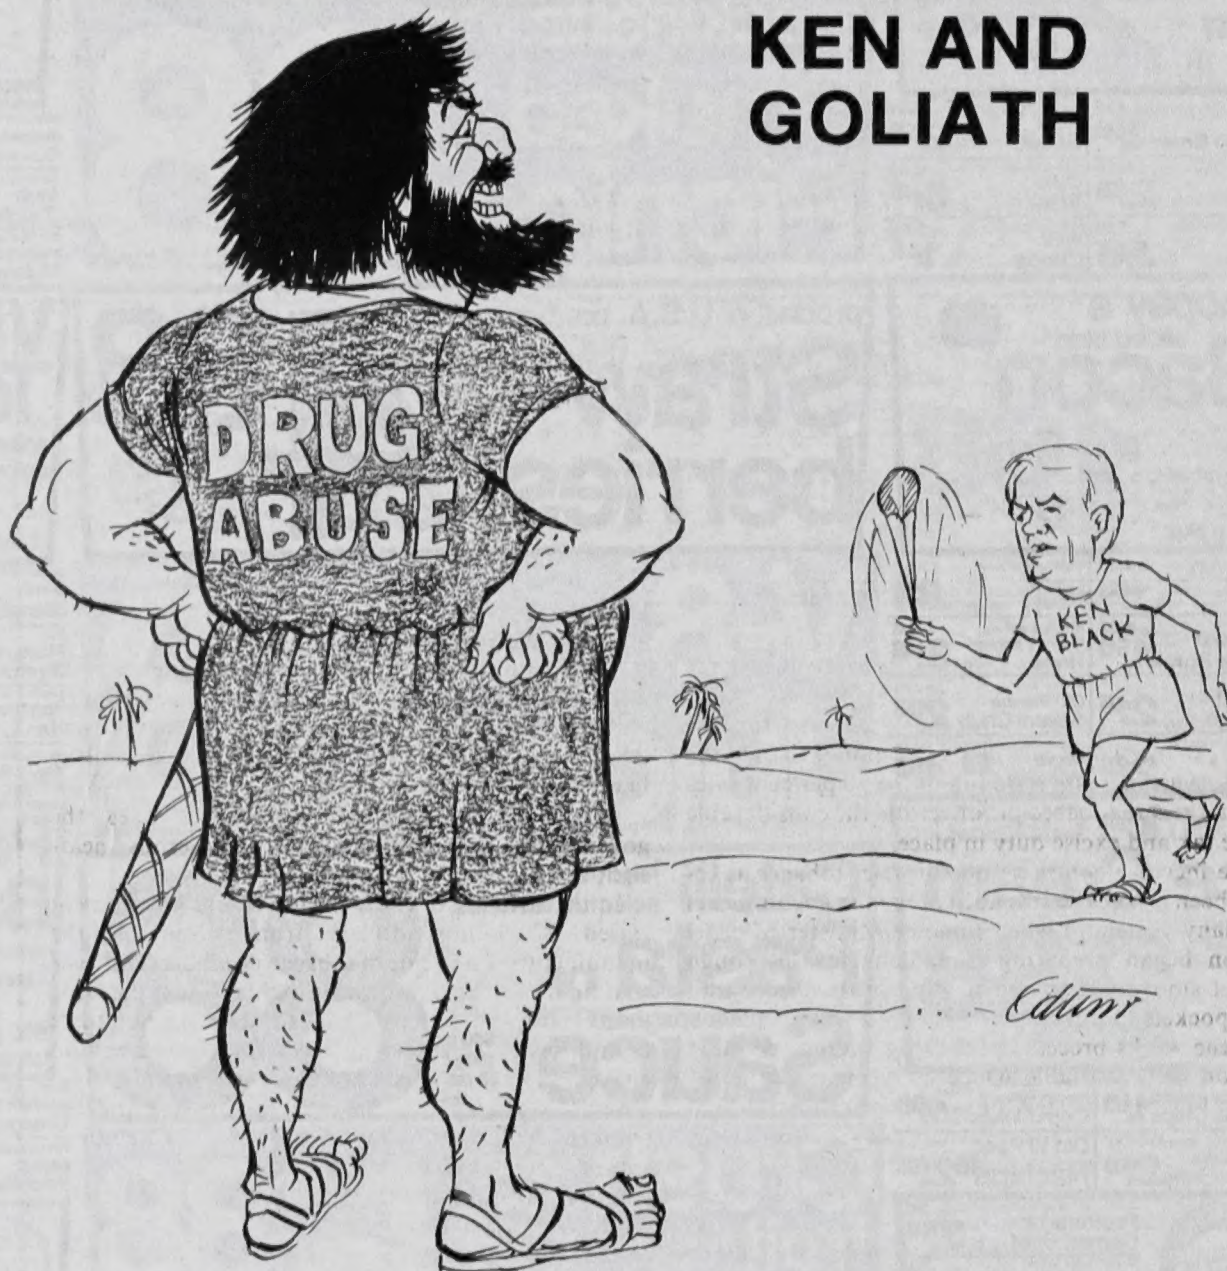

If the recommendations of this committee are accepted, we will see a potent county council that will relieve its municipal counterparts of several burdensome responsibilities. This will allow our overworked municipal councils to concentrate on local matters while the county takes on responsibilities like waste management, economic development, social services, and emergency planning.

Although this committee report is a blueprint for the restructuring of county government, Municipal Affairs Minister John Eakins has wisely opened the door to yet more public comment before acting on the recommendations.

If people feel strongly about the recommendations in this report and can offer legitimate reasons to back up their feelings, now is the time to speak up. These recommendations will affect all of us, not just those who sit on County Council.

Eakins has said he wants to hear our views. We have until July 14 to read the report and comment on its recommendations.

Humorous ammunition to battle postal blues

If any Gentlemen, Merchants, or others, wants to send any Letters to any Foreign Port, they may depend on having their Letters carefully deliver'd to the Captain of the first Vessel bound for the Place to which their Letters are directed, by paying One Penny per Letter to said Office.

*Their humble Servant,
Benjamin Leigh*

The above ad appeared in the Halifax Gazette on April 27, 1754 -- the first evidence of what would grow to become Canada Post.

And unless I miss my guess, by April 28, 1754, disgruntled colonialists were swapping the first anti-post office jokes.

Ah, the post office. It's the brunt of more one-liners than telephone operators, airline food and Jewishmothers-in-law combined. Why do Canadians love to hate the Post Office so?

Part of it is performance of course -- or lack of it.

black 'n white

by Arthur Black

Canada Post is forever getting shot in its corporate foot by the fatuous clowns who work there -- on both sides of the picket fence.

Remember the famous quote from the lips of Jean-Claude Parrot, President of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers back in 1978? His union had just been ordered by court injunction to go back to work. Mister Parrot faced the nation via the TV cameras and snarled "You want to mail a letter? Just try it."

That's the kind of talk that tax-paying citizens of a democracy are really keen to hear.

But it wasn't just the labour side of Canada Post that got the nation's goat. Andre Ouellette, Postmaster-General once blandly told the Globe and Mail: "I can't accept that businessmen have to rely on the Post Office to make a living. If they do, they better find other ways."

What planet do these people live on?

Sometimes the Post Office seems to be engaged in one long banana-skin slide, stumbling and careening from Chaplinesque gaffe to Three Stooges pratfall.

It introduces, with great fanfare, Supermailboxes. They don't work and everybody hates them.

It introduces, in a series of slick and expensive newspaper ads "new streamlining procedures to improve efficiency". First thing it does is close a whole clutch of small town post offices, throwing people out of work and shattering a time-honoured rural tradition.

And how do citizens fight back? With jokes of course.

"Know how to become Postmaster-General? Make

Public forum on use of herbicides is set

Editor:

I am happy to inform our recycling contributors that CHANGE has received $140 from Muskoka Containerized Services for the contents of two trips. This certainly stretches our recycling dollars further.

Also, by squashing the cans and being careful about the non-recyclable materials we can increase the weight and the quality of the container load. Aluminum cans are the top money earner at over $1900 per ton. Stomping for dollars.

It's Spring! and the householder looks at getting the lawn ready and Ontario Hydro, and the ministry of Transport look at keeping their rights-of-way clear. I notice that Ontario Hydro is chipping the brush which is a great step forward but, herbicides are being used on the stumps. Why not spray the chips on the stumps and eliminate the use of the herbicides by mulching? This would prevent regrowth of the plants in a very natural way.

Ideally, Hydro will use the natural biomass, ie. wood chips, to produce heat to drive turbines and will actively grow high-producing, low-growing plants like willow to fuel them. I like the idea of producing energy from a clean, sustainable resource.

Imagine, harvesting the fuel for local electricity from the hydro cuts; now willow farms. We need more plants to convert the increasing carbon dioxide anyway.

CHANGE is sponsoring a public forum on the use of, and alternatives to, biocides, ie. pesticides and herbicides. The use of these potent substances is being questioned all over the world. They eventually show up in the water table.

Heavy applications on rural lawns will jeopardize the well water in time. We need to look at how we use these substances and we need to become more conscious of the results of their application.

The meeting will take place on Saturday, May 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the library of the Douglas Hodgson School in Haliburton. The speakers will be Gerry Heath, Michael Collins, and Gordon Smith. We will be presenting ways of eliminating the use of these chemicals in and around your homes. Also, we will be discussing what you can do to assert your rights in regard to the use of these substances by others.

Clearing the air

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The recent federal budget has taken another shot at one of the governments favourite sources of revenue --smokers.

The Conservatives have increased the tax on cigarettes by $4.00 a carton to raise money to fight the deficit. This increase is on top of the 18 per cent sales tax charged on tobacco products and the considerable excise tax and excise duty in place.

The increase comes as no surprise, tobacco taxes have been a favorite revenue source for governments for many years and when Finance Minister Michael Wilson began preparing Canadians for his tough budget smokers prepared to dig a little deeper into their pockets to pay for their habit.

In the weeks preceding the budget announcement petitions were available in local convenience stores for people to sign if they felt the tax on cigarettes was high enough. Obviously the concerns of the signatories went unheeded by the government.

From a moral stand point high taxes on cigarettes are practical and even beneficial.

Cigarettes are not necessities. People won't die if they can no longer afford to smoke, in fact they run a considerable risk of dying early if they do continue to smoke. There is no longer even the faintest doubt that smoking is extremely unhealthy. It is a factor in lung cancer, heart disease, high blood pressure and a variety of respiratory ailments. And it's not just that smokers are endangering themselves, it has also been determined that second hand smoke is more dangerous than smoking itself.

So if raising taxes forces people to quit smoking then the government is actually doing them some good, right?

And raising money from the sale of cigarettes is far more desirable than putting a tax on food, housing or clothing. It's only reasonable that if people have to pay taxes they might as well pay taxes on a unhealthy luxury than on necessities.

But in relying on heavy tobacco taxes the government is being guilty of dangerous near-sightedness.

In the fiscal year 1987/88 the federal government raised $2 billion dollars from taxes on the manufacturing and sale of tobacco products. This year that figure will be significantly higher. But at the same time Health and Welfare Canada is spending hundreds of millions of dollars trying to convince people to stop smoking and their success rate is worth commending. Twenty years ago 75 per cent of adult Canadians smoked, now only about 25 per cent of Canadians smoke. The government is succeeding in making smoking unfashionable and socially unacceptable. With the increasing restrictions on smoking in restaurants, workplaces, airplanes and government buildings, smoking is not only becoming more expensive but fairly difficult as well.

Augmenting this is the new trend of living a healthy

Comments are fair

Editor:

I'd like to thank the Minden Times for its fair minded editorial comments and other features on snowmobiling in your area.

The Minden Times obviously understands the importance of snowmobiling in Haliburton County. Your editorial stance continues to reflect an unbiased view of this lucrative winter sport.

From our perspective, the economic impact of snowmobiling cannot be better demonstrated than by examining the winter economy of Haliburton County. It clearly reflects how local government, business and an organization like the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association work together for the enjoyment of so many people and are an excellent example for other areas to imitate.

The Ontario Snowmobiler Magazine with its 65,000 readers, salutes the Minden Times on your informed editorial in regard to the positive impact of snowmobiling and your ongoing support of winter tourism.

Real misfits

Editor:

I was thoroughly entertained by the article on the Minden MNR Misfits hockey accomplishments as reported in the April 24 issue of The Times.

The detailed account of the Misfits' tale kept me hanging over the edge of my seat (It's a good thing I was in the "reading room" at the time!)

Congratulations to the Minden MNR Misfits! Your success was truly amazing! (Perhaps ridding yourself of RIFF-RAFF paid off!)

Not to detract from the Misfits glory, it should be noted that Nipigon Nipples (who lost to Minden in the Championship game) received the "Best Participating Team" award - we won the party!

For those readers who could not wade through the blow-by-blow account, a movie is soon to be released and a video of the championship game is currently touring the comedy circuit.

Again, congratulations Misfits! No doubt we'll "Bump" at future tournaments, until then...cheers.

Humorous lost letter recoveries

the Prime Minister very, very angry."

"It now costs 38 cents to mail a letter. Thirteen cents for delivery; twenty-five cents for storage."

Then there's Allan Fotheringham's wicked solution: "It could be ordered that Post Office workers receive their cheques by mail."

But you know when all is said and done, I think maybe we give the Post Office a bit of a bad rap. Sure it's inefficient -- but no more than the phone company or Ottawa or those idiots who keep billing you for magazines you never received and don't want. We Canucks will line up at Supermarket checkouts or sit in doctor's offices like good little sheep for hours with nary a bleat of protest, but let three people get in front of us at the stamp wicket and we start rummaging around for tar and feathers.

Pity the poor Posties -- even when they win they lose. Did you read about that Ontario farmer who received a letter last month with a King George V stamp on it? It had the stamp because it was mailed in 1931. "Must have got stuck behind some machinery" an official explained. Har har. Big laugh on the Post Office for losing a letter for 58 years.

But the really remarkable thing is that the Posties delivered the letter. Just as they're supposed to. Even though they knew they were in for a merciless razzing.

That's class. Not First Class, but class.

I say, Two Cheers for the Post Office!

I'd give 'em all three, but they have to lose something for lousy dusting.

Board Chairman angered by cutbacks

The increase in property taxes resulting from the recently passed board of education budget has upset the board's chairman as much, if not more, than it's likely to upset tax payers or municipal councils.

"What bothers me is that we don't have anything extra in there," Wendy Ladurantaye said in an interview on Thursday. "We have been very fiscally responsible. There is an increase because of what is happening with the present government."

The board's 1989 budget is 9.8 per cent larger than last year, but because the Ontario Ministry of Education did not increase the level of provincial funding the municipal levy has increased by 15.7 per cent.

Ladurantaye says recent actions taken by the government have placed a strain on school boards and in the case of small school boards like Haliburton County's, the strain is becoming critical.

In recent years, the Ministry has opened the door to early retirement for teachers to create spaces for younger teachers. But because the size of classes in the province's teachers colleges have not increased the result has been a teacher shortage.

Providing full funding to the separate school system also reduced the money available to the public school system, says Ladurantaye.

Most recently the province began an initiative to reduce the number of students per teacher to 20 with out providing funding to allow schools to create more classroom space. "You can't put 40 students and two teachers in one classroom," says Ladurantaye. "We don't have enough space now."

During the reign of the Conservatives in Queen's Park, funding to school boards dropped from 60 per cent to 40 per cent. During the 1987 election campaign, the Liberal Party, under David Peterson, promised to bring the level of funding to the school system back to 60 per cent. This year the level of provincial funding in Haliburton County dropped from 37 per cent to 34 per cent.

'How much more can people take,' Wendy Ladurantaye asks. She believes the government should fund the present educational programs before it introduces new ones.

The province has also required school boards to alter their special education programs to provide more individual attention to the students putting further strain on the amount of available classroom space.

As a result of these provincial initiatives and the increase in student population in Haliburton County, Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden and Victoria Street School in Haliburton are facing serious space shortages. Despite these problems the Ministry of Education has not provided any capital expenditure grants for Haliburton County during the next three years.

"Rural Ontario is getting the short end of the stick," said Ladurantaye. "We're not getting consideration because we are not part of the group of school boards in Toronto."

Ladurantaye is aware that the large boards are faced with the same funding struggle as the small ones, but she says it seems the large boards have more success in getting the province's attention.

The Haliburton County Board of Education is considered a wealthy board in the eyes of the province because it has a low student population compared to its property tax assessment base. Ladurantaye says that while Haliburton may have a large cottage assessment, it does not have the industrial and commercial assessment to draw on than the southern boards have. And Haliburton County tax payers can't afford to make-up the shortfall in government funding. "People up here don't make the same kind of money as people in Toronto. The wages just aren't as high," she says.

And while the government has frozen the funds to the Haliburton Board, the Ministry of Education continues to require that new initiatives and programs be implemented.

The Ministry is requiring that boards provide space for day care facilities in all new schools and are discussing the possibility of having schools provide meals for students. They have also recently ordered a review of language arts curriculum for Grades One through Six, all at the expense of the local tax payer. "How much more can people take," asks Ladurantaye. She believes the government should ensure that all current programs and facilities are in order and well financed before they start bring in new ones.

Minister of Education Chris Ward announced his recent list of requirements for school boards last week and said he thought the people of Ontario were willing to pay more for education. "If he believes that he is extremely out of touch with the average tax payer," says Ladurantaye.

As part of this year's budget deliberations, the board

Minden pans wolf bounty ban

The municipal council of Anson, Hindon and Minden has unanimously passed a resolution objecting to the province's ban on wolf bounties and asking that the ban be rescinded.

Council was supporting a letter sent to all rural municipalities in Ontario by the Township of Lavant, Dalhousie and North Sherbrooke. In the letter the councillors from the Lanark County township said farmers, livestock producers and concerned citizens in their area voiced strong objection to the government's plan to take the right to pay bounties away from municipalities. The letter also said that the Lavant councillors found the bounty system to be an effective method of addressing the problem of predator animals and the consequent killing of livestock and damage to property.

In supporting the Lavant resolution, Minden Councillor Bob Sisson said the ban on bounties was just another example of the province taking responsibilities away from municipalities. He suggested that the letter be forwarded to County Council for their consideration because it is the county which pays the bounties in this area.

"We're going to get in hot water with people who don't want to see the poor little predators done away with," said Reeve Ray Moore.

Plenty of ideas but no funding trustees wrestled with the idea of starting a building fund to help provide for future expansions, but after learning the amount of provincial funding Ladurantaye decided that local tax payers couldn't handle any more.

Another current program announced by Ward was one to require school boards to provide half-day every day Junior Kindergarten and full-day every day senior Kindergarten. Ladurantaye says that at Archie Stouffer alone, this will require four more classrooms plus teachers. And beside the strain on school accommodations, the board will be required to provide noon transportation for the students attending Junior Kindergarten. Currently Senior Kindergarten is offered all day on alternate days so students can ride the regular bus routes. The extra bussing for Archie Stouffer will cost an additional $14,500 a year.

Ladurantaye's biggest concern is that the province is not allowing the local school boards any autonomy to decide what they need and what they can afford. "They just tell us you have to do this, you have no choice and you must pay for it." She says the whole situation has made the trustees, "very distressed and angry."

It would have been better to at least have a grant increase to cover inflation, says the chairman. "How do they expect us to manage with an increase of 0.7 per cent?"

The strength of property taxes is that they hold local governments accountable for the money they spend but Ladurantaye says it has come to the point where the school board is held accountable for a budget over which it has no say.

"We are no longer the voice of the people who elected us," says Ladurantaye. "It's frustrating when you are voted in by the people and you can't represent them. This isn't democracy."

Haliburton overlooked on Ministry's list of capital grant recipients

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Ministry of Education has announced its list of capital expenditure grants for the next three years and neither Minden's Archie Stouffer Elementary School nor Haliburton's Victoria Street School will be given any money.

The Haliburton County Board of Education had submitted funding requests for the two schools, both of which are experiencing space and facility shortages but when the Ministry announced its $300-million, three-year list of priorities in Peterborough two weeks ago, Haliburton County did not meet the criteria needed to receive funding.

The Board's Director of Education, Stuart Baker, broke the news to the trustees at last week's board of education meeting. He said the ministry had set aside a small amount of money in reserve to deal with critical situations that aren't in the three-year plan, but said he doubted whether Minden or Haliburton's situation would be considered critical by the ministry.

The most serious implication of the announcement is that the temporary zoning and lease on the former Dollo's IGA building expires in three years and the board had hoped to build an addition on the Archie Stouffer school before then. The Dollo building is currently being used to house five classrooms to alleviate a space shortage at the school. The use of the building as a school annex as strongly objected to by some Minden residents and was the subject of an Ontario Municipal Board hearing last summer. The OMB decided in favour of the board of education but at the end of the three years another rezoning application must be submitted to continue using the building, creating the possibility of another municipal board hearing.

Baker told the trustees that Haliburton County was left off the ministry's list because the local growth in student population is low compared to larger school boards to the south. Four of these large boards, Dufferin, Halton, Peel and Durham, have banded together to form a lobby group to attract provincial grants. "With such clout there is very little money left over for Haliburton County," said Baker.

He told the trustees that he had advised the ministry of the situation facing the Archie Stouffer annex and also that elementary students are being taught in three different locations in Haliburton village, Victoria Street, the Sir Sandford Fleming campus and J.D. Hodgson. The director told the ministry that some students are spending 45 min-

Ministry should not 'prop up' small municipalities: Report

all 26 counties have their studies completed within five years.

The idea of amalgamation is not new to Haliburton County. On several occasions in the past, this issue has been raised at the county council table. The most recent bout with the controversial issue came last summer when a notice of motion was tabled asking county councillors to come prepared to discuss amalgamation to the next meeting. This was sparked by the release of the ministry's report from the Advisory Committee on County Government.

However, those planned discussions were later shelved and Eakins was invited to attend a meeting to discuss the ramifications of the report. Pressed by Dysart Reeve Murray Fearry, Eakins said that any amalgamation of municipalities in Haliburton County would come from within.

INCENTIVES

This latest report backs up that statement, although small municipalities may find it more difficult to go it alone in the future.

Recommendations 35 and 36 in this report suggest that the ministry has, in fact, committed staffing and finances to "prop up or encourage the maintenance of small, inefficient municipalities." The committee recommends that the province realigns its conditional and unconditional grant programs that have encouraged the existence of small municipalities.

"Penalizing municipalities for efficiency is contrary to the county system envisaged in this report," the committee says. "For example, the Committee feels the present policy of the Ministry of Environment which grants up to 85 per cent subsidies for projects of small municipalities while only providing 15 per cent for larger units is counter-productive."

Some of the other recommendations in this report that are of special interest to Haliburton County are:

—The maximum size of county council should be 20 members. Haliburton county already falls within this range, although if there was amalgamation of small townships a new method of representation would have to be implemented.

—Representation on County Councils be based on the principle of representation by population. This will be considered to be achieved when the number of electors per representative is within 25 per cent of the average number of electors per representative in the county.

Greater variations in representation are acceptable to provide representation for those municipalities that are allowed to exist with a population base of less than 4,000.

No municipality should be allowed to have a majority of the representation on council.

—The head of a township council should continue to be called Reeve unless that council passes a by-law to call the head of council Mayor. The head of local council in a Town should continue to be called a Mayor.

—The head of County Council should be called County Warden, as opposed to the present title of Warden. All other members of county council should be called County Councillors.

—Counties should have sole responsibility for waste management and social services.

—Counties should be given responsibility for economic development and sewer and water with municipalities being given the authority to participate in the delivery of these services.

—Municipalities should have sole responsibility for building inspections, fire services, policing, business licensing, street lighting, sidewalks, transit, gas, steam, electricity, parking, architectural conservation and recreation.

—Responsibility for land use planning functions should be divided between counties and municipalities. Counties should adopt an Official Plan by 1994 and administer the consent granting process. Municipalities should be responsible for local planning implementation, including zoning, site plan control and plans of subdivision and have authority to adopt a local official plan that would conform with the county official plan.

—Counties and municipalities undertake a county-wide property tax reassessment.

The cause of the fire that burned all the grass on the hill behind Archie Stouffer Elementary School early last week is believed to be children playing with fireworks. Firefighters were called to douse the flames that were quickly spreading through the long, dry grass. The dry weather this spring has spawned ideal conditions for grass fires.

Spring in the Highlands

When spring finally arrives in the Highlands most people are so hard at work cleaning up their yards, opening up the cottages or tending to a variety of post-winter, pre-summer chores that all the clamour of wildlife in the area's woodlands and marshes goes, for the most part, unnoticed.

For those who enjoy the outdoors, though, this is the best time of the year to get out for a walk. The birds and animals know somehow that this is not the season for hunting and the presence of humans isn't as much of a threat.

The abandoned railway corridor between Haliburton and Kinmount is an ideal hiking path at this time of the year. The cleared railway bed makes for easy walking.

It goes through the woods in areas, crosses some great wetlands and hugs up against several small lakes. From one end to the other it is alive with fur- and feather-bearing animals.

If you want to take a break from all the chores, there's no better place to get away from it all. An added bonus right now is the absence of those pesky black flies and mosquitoes.

Decades of leadership

In the summer of 1964 a man came to Snowdon Township Council to complain that his sheep were being killed by wolves. He argued back and forth with council, and in the end he was told that if he thinks he knows so much he should run for a seat on council.

He did just that.

On January 11, 1965, a whole new slate of council members were sworn in during the inaugural meeting at the Township office in Gelert. Among those taking their oaths of office for the first time on that day were Reeve Bill Scott (now MP for Victoria-Haliburton), and Councillors Orville Hicks, Leslie Switzer and Richard Milburn. Also on the new slate of councillors was the man who was destined to be one of the longest serving members of a municipal council in this county ever, Bob Vick.

"I didn't intend to be on council," Vick said last Wednesday afternoon at his home, which is a little more than a stone's throw from the township office. "I had a run in one time over some sheep and they told me 'If you know so much you should run for council.'"

Vick was re-elected for the next two consecutive years as a councillor. And in the fall of 1967 he became the township Reeve, a position he held for the next 21 years until he was unseated by George Simmons last November.

There are few who live in Snowdon Township who cannot recall being done a good turn by Vick at some point in his lengthy political career. And on May 13 at the Royal Canadian Legion in Haliburton Village those people will have a chance to say thank you when an appreciation dinner and dance will be held in his honour.

One of the most memorable years in his political life was 1977 when he was chosen to be County Warden. He and his wife, Audrey, attended numerous conventions that year. But most of all, they enjoyed travelling to Joyceville to see the International Plowing Match.

As most local politicians are quick to admit, serving on a municipal council can, at times, be a real headache. Whenever someone has a complaint, they don't hesitate to pick up the phone and call the Reeve. And more often than not, it's the Reeve's wife who ends up fielding the calls.

Audrey Vick says it never bothered her that Bob was the Reeve. "It's not really bad," she said. "I enjoyed it. We always did things together." After more than two decades of practice, she was accustomed to being the Reeve's wife. "He was in so long I never thought of it any more."

Both Bob and Audrey were born in Snowdon Township—Bob's from Gelert and Audrey was born in Lochlin. And except for a few years when Bob's work with the railway took them away from the township, they have always lived here.

Bob and Audrey were married at the Lochlin United Church in 1944. Together, they have raised four children, Larry, Dale, Wayne and Julie.

In his school days, Bob admits he wasn't at the top of the class. He received all of his academic schooling in the one-room schoolhouse that still stands on the Lower Dutch Road outside Gelert. "I was always thrown through the grades on trial," he said. In those days school wasn't

A dispute with Snowdon Township Council developed into 21 years at the helm for Bob Vick

Between January of 1965 and last November, Bob Vick served on Snowdon Township Council, first as a councillor and later as the Reeve. He and his wife, Audrey have lived in the township for most of their lives and have made numerous friends. On May 13, those friends and neighbours will gather at the Haliburton Legion for an appreciation dinner and dance to honour one of the longest-serving municipal politicians in Haliburton County history. Bob and Audrey are seen here at their home in Gelert with some of their Belgian draft horses.

'He was in so long, I never thought of it any more.' Audrey Vick says being married to the Reeve was enjoyable in spite of its challenges.

considered to be as important as it is today, especially in rural parts of the province and many never made it to high school. Vick says he completed four subjects in high school—which, incidentally, was still held at that same school house—before finally calling it quits and going to work.

For 40 years Vick, who turned 70 on April 22, worked for the railway as a section hand, and later as a section foreman. The nature of this work took him all over the country until he finally retired in 1982.

During his years as Snowdon Reeve, Vick says not a lot has changed in the township. "We lost the railway, stores, churches and the highway. Other than that, not too much has changed."

During his last three-year term the population of the township finally started to rise. In fact, in terms of percentage of growth, Snowdon's population was going up at a faster rate than any other in the county, he said.

Now, though, he says he is worried about what he sees happening in the municipality. There's the threat of amalgamation with neighbouring townships, and he's afraid the spending habits of the new Reeve and council will force the taxes up. "I worked so many years to get the population coming in that I hate to see it go downhill," he says.

After such a lengthy involvement in the township's affairs it is difficult to see things being run by someone else. Vick, though, continues to keep a close eye on what council is up to, and you can bet that if he doesn't agree with what they are doing, they'll hear about it.

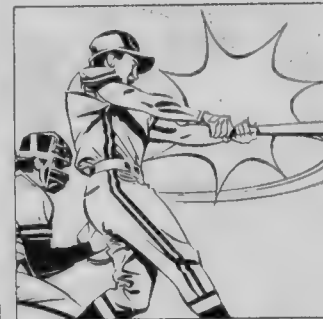

And if they're smart they'll listen instead of replying: "If you know so much, you should run for council."

Spring into Summer was the theme of the fashion show held in the PineStone's Grand Ballroom on April 21. Sponsored by Country Pickin's and the Village Shoppé, the show highlighted some of the fashions which will be hot this summer. Also featured was a performance of the dance troupe Art Alive.

Thursday tea greatly appreciated

senior league

by Winnifred Barnum

Thursday the Haliburton A.C.W. provided the residents with a lovely tea which was appreciated very much and thank you sincerely.

Doug Holmes of the Kinsmen called bingo in the evening. We thank him for using his free time to entertain us.

Friday morning we had fun and fitness, and at one o'clock Mrs. Coleman came for Bible study from Luke chapter 13. Since it was such a lovely day, Doris and Linda took us for a bus ride to Norland, across to Kinmount, and home after stopping for ice cream at Kawartha Dairy. We got home in time to finish the book Anne of Avonlea.

Dora Dawson had Bill Johnson from Toronto and Mrs. Eastman also June Johnstone. On her birthday she had Earl and Alice Dawson and nephews, Isabelle Gibbs and Irene Davis to see her.

Saturday Alice Todd had Barbara Todd, Mabel Deacon and Barbara's niece for tea at Hyland Crest.

This week we had two birthdays to celebrate. Tessa Davis April 21 and Dora Dawson April 23. They were both wished a happy birthday.

May Horsley had her daughter Lynn and husband David and Ina McGuire for dinner Sunday night.

Lola Prentice and Verna Jarvis had Mrs. Windover and Mrs. Seuret to visit them Saturday. Saturday afternoon Tanya Allaire called bingo for us in the auditorium.

Ina McGuire attended awards dinner in the Haliburton Legion. Her three sons Doug, Don and Murray and her daughter Marjory from Trenton were with her. She received four certificates of merit and a basket of flowers. One from Bill Scott for 20 years dedicated service to Ladies auxiliary, Haliburton Branch 129, a third Royal Canadian for zealously upholding the traditions etc. of the Legion, a fourth from the Government of Ontario Rt. Honourable David Peterson congratulating her on receiving the above awards, presented by John Eakins. Congratulations Ina!

The seven ladies who have been training since the first of the year on a Health Care Aides course have completed the course here at Hyland Crest. We wish them success in their future endeavors.

Sunday Alice Todd had dinner with Eldon and Mabel Deacon, Barbara Todd and boys and Sue and children were there also. They had an enjoyable time.

Since work was being done in the craft room, Doris decided to take us for a bus ride. It was a beautiful day. We drove

Education costs rise

This year the government announced a four per cent increase to the provincial school system, but Bradley says the money was distributed to boards according to their rate of growth. Boards experiencing rapid growth, like those in Peel and Durham, were allotted more than four per cent while small boards, like Haliburton received almost no increase at all.

The expected 10 per cent increase in the board's student population and the current five per cent rate of inflation account for the increase in expenditures, says Bradley. Capital building projects, like the high school's new Learning Resource Centre, are not figured into the budget because they are funded through a separate government program.

Operators of lodges and recreational facilities in remote locations face many economic obstacles when trying to provide attractive, comfortable accommodation for Ontario tourists.

The Ontario Ministry of Energy recognizes that energy costs form a large part of operating costs and have provided a book called "Energy Alternatives for Remote Lodges and Facilities". This book is intended to help lodge operators reduce their energy costs and thereby contribute to making Ontario's lodge and recreational facilities more efficient and successful.

Copies of this book are now available at your nearest information centre. In Haliburton the Centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday - Friday from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. or call 457-2733. For Minden residents the office is in the Municipal Building, Milne Street, open Tuesdays from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Local firm receives federal funds

Applied Stress Technology Inc., of Minden, will receive a contribution of $44,401 under the federal government's Industrial and Regional Development Program. The funds will be used toward the cost of a $364,000 project which, by the third year, is expected to create six jobs.

The announcement was

scales that actually "read" the weight being applied.

lifestyle. More and more people's lives include proper diet, and exercise and do not include the consumption of tobacco products.

The result? The government is generating an ever increasing amount of revenue from a ever decreasing population of smokers. Simple logic says that eventually the government's multi-billion dollar cash source is going to dry up as smokers either kick the habit or kick the bucket. And when the sale of cigarettes bottoms out, where is the government going to go to replace the revenue.

Canadian industry is disappointed because the Canadian deficit is running about the $30 billion mark instead of the $28 billion they were hoping for. In terms of the budget, the $2 billion dollars raised from the sale of tobacco is not insignificant.

What the government should be doing is applying the old economic principal of supply and demand. In other words use the money raised from the sale of tobacco to help address the problems the habit causes. Put the $2 billion into medical treatment of cancer and other smoking related ailments. Use the money to fund anti-smoking public campaigns and to educate young children on the dangers of smoking to discourage young people from starting. Provide incentives for tobacco farmers and producers to get into a new industry. Initiate treatment programs in order to help smoker get over their chemical dependence on nicotine, a substance more addictive than either cocaine or heroin.

As the number of smokers decreased so would the demand for revenue they place on society. Health and Welfare's current campaign is "A new generation of non-smokers" but can the government really afford it? Let's face it if the government was serious about ending the smoking problem they would declare tobacco a narcotic substance or make smoking a criminal offense. But they can't afford such a drastic move so instead they legislate the use of tobacco. You can buy it, as long as you don't use it in public.

As it stands now the tobacco tax could go a long way in the fight against smoking and instead of discriminating against smokers the government would be helping them quit. And it wouldn't have to cost non-smokers a single penny.

Personal safety program okayed for use in Haliburton schools

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Haliburton Board of Education has approved implementation of a personal safety program in area schools to help educate students about the dangers of physical and sexual abuse.

Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson, tabled a report he had written studying the six-week program and recommended that the board adopt it for implementation in the 1989/90 school year.

A committee was formed to study the proposal and during the course of their investigation spoke with boards who currently use the program, and presented the idea to teachers, principals and parents to get feed back on the proposal. Included in Robinson's report were five recommendations dealing with the Personal Safety We Care program;

--The program be taught in every school, every year from Kindergarten to Grade Three, commencing September 1989,

--Regular communication between home and school so that parents may discuss privately with their children the topics that are being discussed at school. The responsibility of ensuring this communication is established lies with the principals,

--Parents may request that their child be excluded from the program by submitting a letter to the principal requesting exclusion and stating reasons for the request,

--In cases where teachers request being excused from teaching the personal safety program due to concern about the nature of the material, the principal will consider such requests and arrange an exchange of assignments with another teacher where such an exchange is possible,

--Teachers teaching the program will receive further training before being asked to implement the program.

Robinson told the trustees that there is quite a problem with physical and sexual abuse and it is hoped that the We Care program will help do something about that.

The program will run for six weeks and teachers will receive training to enable them to present the material to the students.

The program is designed to ensure that each student will have the knowledge, skills and attitudes necessary for dealing with abuse, assault and violence and to inform students of their rights and responsibilities in caring for themselves and others.

We Care places emphasis on enabling the students to identify positive and negative feelings, appropriate and inappropriate touching, the importance of reporting incidents of abuse and whom to tell.

The concepts that will be taught to the students include;

- Everybody has feelings,
- Everybody has a body,
- Some parts of your body are private,
- Your body and your feelings belong to you,
- Trust your feelings,
- You can say "no" and
- You are not to blame.

Robinson said the responses from the parents who attended the information nights about the program were very positive. "People were saying that it's long overdue," he said.

One of the concerns raised is that the program may cause children to over-react to certain normal physical situations, such as a hug from a parent, but Robinson said the proper presentation of the material would discourage paranoia.

Trustee Tim Casey said he had some reservations about the program. "What bothers me is the attitude of small town Ontario where a small innocent thing takes place and a person is branded as a child molester. I'm not sure the school board has any business taking a step in this direction."

"You would have to have a very sensitive teacher," said Len Salvatori.

Sherborne et al trustee Ed de Grosbois said the program should be closely monitored and evaluated. "If we teach a child about good touching and bad touching before he has to worry about it, it could cause additional damage. If there is no evaluation we don't know if parents are seeing their kids come home with a lot of confusion."

But Robinson said that if parents feel uncomfortable they don't have to have their children in the program. He added that discussion about the material between the school and the home will allow parents to set the scene for what the children will discuss in the class.

The board plans to follow up on the program, said Robinson, by sending home questionnaires at the end of the first year to see if there were any problems.

Casey said that would be way too late for parents falsely accused of abusing their children but trustee Craig Pettit said that if the program wasn't implemented it would be way too late for the children being abused. "Adults recover more quickly than children," he said.

Robinson said that children very rarely lie about sexual abuse because they don't understand it well enough to fabricate a story.

Salvatori said he agreed with the concept of the program but pointed out that all parents treat their children differently and wondered if a teacher could communicate these differences to a five-year-old.

The program isn't fool-proof admitted Robinson, but said it was a reasonable approach to getting information to students about a serious problem.

Cheryl Murdoch said the program was worthwhile "if it saves one child in Haliburton County from sexual abuse."

According to the Kawartha-Haliburton Children's Aid Society in the past two years there have been 23 reported cases of physical abuse and 20 reported cases of sexual abuse in Haliburton County.

The Victoria County Board of Education introduced the personal safety program in 1986-87 at the Grade

Three level as part of a pilot project in five of its schools. Program Co-ordinator Will Capling told The Times that the board was very pleased with the feed back it got from teachers and parents. Great many parents told the Victoria Board that it was an excellent program and they wished it were introduced to the students at a younger age. The board decided to offer the program at Grade One because enrollment in Kindergarten is optional and they wanted all the children to get the information at the same time.

Capeling said the teacher's comfort level with the program is very high. The Victoria board has also found that instead of making the children suspicious of adults it has made them more cautious. "I don't see anything wrong with that," said Capeling.

Because of the success of the Victoria Board's implementation of the program, Capeling says other boards are coming to them for information and advice.

County is not getting its share of education dollars

utes on the school bus without leaving the village because pick-ups are made at all three locations.

Baker said the ministry's funding is based primarily on school boards in southern Ontario. "Rural Ontario public boards are not getting their share of money for new accommodations," he said.

In November the board of education will submit another five-year capital expenditure forecast to the ministry for consideration but Baker says he doubts there is anything new the board can add to the report which would place it higher on the province's list of priorities.

In response to the news, the board's Minden and Haliburton accommodation committees are going to begin meeting to formulate a position for the trustees' consideration. "Unless we take action now, whole groups of children are going to go through the school system in Haliburton without ever having proper accommodations," Baker said.

Eye glass efforts are appreciated

The Minden Lions are very grateful to Cub Coneybeare for his efforts in our Eye Glass program. He contacted Paul Dowdall, Optician of Lindsay, who made a large donation of frames and glasses to our club. We appreciate your support Cub. At our Convention in Lindsay April 22 and 23 an announcement was made that over 2000 pairs of eye glasses have been sent to third world countries in the past year from District A-16, which our club is part of. With the continued support of our community Minden Lions was the largest supplier.

Our Easter Bunnys went

for your service

by Alan Thompson

well again this year. The club thanks the community for their support.

Plans are being made for the Lions and Lioness food booth at the Ride for Sight weekend June 10, 11 which is just around the corner. We have been told it will be larger than last year. Hope the weather soon warms up so we will be able to have a freshly painted booth.

A large project for us this year is to raise money for the Hyland Crest Bus. We are having a draw to help us in this venture. Prizes are, First $1,000.00, Second $750.00, Third $500.00, Fourth $250.00, Fifth $100.00. The draw is limited to 2000 tickets and will be held Saturday, September 2nd at 2 p.m. at the main street parkett.

April is election month for our club. The new officers are Immediate Past President Lee Oster, President Wally Bunn, First Vice President Maurice Boyd, Second Vice President Jim Hamilton, Third Vice President Leon Wright, Secretary Paul Norry, Treasurer Mel Flood, Lion Tamer George Moulton, Tail Twister Dave Howell, 1 Year Director Bill Stackhouse, 2 Year Director Greg Readman. They start office in June.

At the Kinmount Santa Claus Parade last year the club had 2 members dressed as clowns who performed well. We now have a clown unit of 9 which will help to add excitement when they appear. Quite an accomplishment for a club of our size.

and Friday curling days. To Muriel Harrington and Ross Codlin for their dedication to scheduling on our curling days. To all the members who assisted in the special Fun Days and Bonspiels and those people who organized them. To our super ice-makers and the executive of the Minden Curling Club for providing us with the best ice in Ontario. To our bartenders, Bill and Margaret Harrison and alternates Bill and Sally Bonner and a special thanks to all curlers and especially those who filled in for second game duties.

A sad note was when Russ King read a list of our members who had passed away during the season and we observed a minute of silence in their memory.

A final note of thanks went to President Harold McCarthy and the Executive of the Seniors Curling Club. They hope to meet everyone again at the next get-together at the Curling Club on Thursday, April 27th, for the Elections. Keep in mind that a date is to be decided in June for the Annual Golf Tournament.

Many remained afterward to enjoy fellowship and dancing to complete a wonderful evening.

This shot was good enough to put Ron Perrin into third place in the Senior Boys shot put competition during the High School's track and field day last Tuesday. Tartan a symbol of Highlands

The Highlands of Haliburton Tartan is steadily becoming a readily identifiable symbol of this area thanks to the the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and its manager.

"The tartan is one mor thing to help people remember the county when they come across our booth (at trade shows)" Chamber Manager Shirley Rapson said last Thursday during a board meeting in Wilberforce.

Rapson was congratulated for taking it upon herself to wear a kilt made from the Highlands Tartan at these shows. The directors said they appreciate this initiative and later passed a resolution to reimburse her for the cost of the kilt.

The Haliburton Highlands Tartan was designed in 1963 by the Loomcrafters of Gagetown, New Brunswick. The green of the design represents the forests, the blue is the lakes. White represents both the snow and the provincial flower, the trillium. The red and gold represent the splendour of the fall colours. Brown represents the earth, the fur bearing animals and the work of the early pioneers of Haliburton County.

"I think we can be so very proud of our tartan because it stacks up so well with other regional tartans," said Rapson. There are three types of tartans: clan tartans, military tartans and regional tartans.

With the first Haliburton Highland Games slated for this summer, the chamber is also hoping to create some sort of souvenir that would feature the Highlands Tartan. One idea was to sell swatches of the material with an explanation of what the colours represent as a memento of the Games.

The tartan, which is only available from Stedmans in Minden and Haliburton, has also proven to be a very handy thing at the various trade shows. At the Sportsman Show in Toronto, they covered 13,000 of the lure books with a tartan to make an attractive table. As the books were distributed, the table became smaller.

4-H Goat Club is established in Victoria

For the first time, a 4-H Goat Club is being formed in Victoria County.

Goats have long been the subject of many cruel jokes, goats have been called stinky, hairy, mean, and are supposed to eat tin cans. None of this is true.

Goats are, in reality, very clean, economical to keep, and goats love people. Goats are the ideal farm pet because they are very gentle, and take little space in the barn. Goats are different than other farm animals, and have to be managed properly. Goats are easy to manage when people know how, but it is hard to find good information on goats.

4-H offers good information on goats and 4-H offers many other good things like learning leadership skills, and making new friends.

Whether you have one goat or 100 goats this 4-H

Goat Club is for you. All persons aged 11 to 21 years are welcome. The first meeting is planned for May 3. Please call 357-3367 or Ann Hankinson, Rural Organization Specialist at 1-800-461-0329 for more information.

CARD OF THANKS

Sincere thanks to all the friends and neighbours who sent cards, flowers, gifts and food, to help me through my recent stay in the hospital. Special thanks to Nancy Cook and Irene Fuhr. It's good to be back home.

Marian Ingram

It is great for us to be home again after having spent five months away with Bob in Civic Hospital in Peterborough, South Street Campus Victoria Hospital in London, and further treatment in the New West Minister Campus of Victoria Hospital, London. We wish to acknowledge with grateful thanks the loving concern of family, relatives, and many friends as expressed in prayers, phone calls, cards, letters, flowers, gifts, and visits during these months, with a special thanks to Norma Barron and Pat Bradburn who cared for our home, mail, etc. while we were away. Bob and Bette Herlihey

The Haliburton and District Association for the Mentally Retarded would like to thank Sylvia Holland and Laurie Bonfield and everyone else involved with the Fashion Show held at the PineStone on Friday, April 21. Thanks also to the models and guests. Your support is very appreciated.

IN MEMORIAM

WARBURTON: In loving memory of our darling daughter Donna-Lynn who passed away April 29, 1965.

This month comes with sad regrets
It brings back memories of a day we will never forget
You feel asleep without good-byes
But our memories of you will never die
Nothing can be so beautiful
Than the thoughts we have of you
To us you are special
God must have thought so too.
We miss you more than anyone else
As each day breaks our emptiness grows
The tears we shed we can wipe away
But the ache in our hearts will always stay.

Ever remembered, Mom and Dad.

A Coleman® cooler
big enough for a house!

New 9+ S.E.E.R.
Coleman® Cooler
Air Conditioner

Wouldn't it be great if the trusty Coleman® cooler (ice chest) were big enough to cool a whole house? Its simple design, economical cost and efficiency are hard to beat when you have to cool off a watermelon or case of soft drinks.

That's why Coleman's Residential Heating and Air Conditioning Division didn't have to look far for a namesake, when they built a new air conditioner with quality, efficiency and an affordable price.

The new Coleman® Cooler Air Conditioner* uses advanced design and production techniques that give you a lower purchase price, simpler installation and faster service.

*Ratings will vary depending upon size and model purchased.
